FESTIVAL CROWD TODAY ESTABLISHED NEW RECORD

THOUSANDS SEE FLORAL PARADE

Many Beautiful Decorated Automobiles were Entered in the Special Feature this Morning.

ALL ENTRIES WERE ARTISTIC

Many of the Designs were Original and Unique, Attracting Great Attention of Spectators.

The committee decided late this afternoon to repeat the Floral Parade at 4:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon. This action was taken because of the many urgent requests that another opportunity be given to witness it.

The gorgeous and spectacular display of artistically and attractively decorated automobiles entered in the floral parade this morning surpassed all expectations and the event was so successful that the committee has been urged to repeat it again Thursday. The parade formed in line at 10:30 o'clock on North Chestnut street and moved north to Seventh, crossing to Walnut, then south on Walnut to Bruce. The line came to Chestnut street and north on Chestnut to Second, then east to Ewing and after proceeding to the end of the paved streets disbanded.

The streets all along the route were crowded. It is estimated that the pageant was witnessed by eight to ten thousand people. The feature was the most successful of its kind that has even been held in this city and the committee deserves much praise for the manner in which it was conducted. Those who participated made the parade a success for without their co-operation it would have been impossible. The machine and vehicle owners spared no work in decorating their machines.

The judges will have a difficult time in deciding who are the winners. The decision has not been announced but will likely be rendered sometime Thursday.

The parade was in charge of Mayor Claud Carter, who has given his personal attention to arranging all the details of this feature of the festival. Much of the success of the parade, which was pronounced by everyone as the best of its kind ever attempted in Seymour, is due to Mr. Carter's untiring efforts.

Chief of Police McCord and Officers Russell and Wallace, mounted on prancing steeds, led the parade. The horses were decorated with plumes and the saddle blankets were completely concealed by flowers.

Following the platoon of police came the fire department equipment. The combination hose and ladder

RAILROAD TRAFFIC UNUSUALLY HEAVY

Trains and Traction Cars Arriving in Seymour Today Are Crowded With Visitors.

INTEREST IS INCREASING

Definite Plans for Mardi Gras on Friday Night Announced by Entertainment Committee.

Traffic into the city today was very heavy and all trains and cars were crowded with Festival visitors. All roads are making preparations to handle the heavy crowds expected tomorrow. Special trains will be run on the B. & O. S-W. west, until Saturday, which will afford residents in the western part of the county a splendid opportunity to spend the day in Seymour returning home at a reasonable hour.

Many out-of-town visitors were in evidence in the crowds in the festival district this morning. A good out-of-town attendance is anticipated for tonight, and the attendance for tomorrow is expected to break all records and crowd the city. Besides the attractions and the exhibits which would ordinarily draw the crowds, the crowning feature which will be the magnet that will attract many visitors from all over this section of the state will be the dedication of the Farmers' Club building, and the address of Hon. D. S. Houston, President Wilson's Secretary of Agriculture.

The crowd this morning was augmented just before the parade started by the pupils of the city schools, who were dismissed in order to give them an opportunity to see the spectacle.

The Band Concert at 10 o'clock by the Zouave Band on the Tipton street stage was heard by a large audience.

The crowd was impatient to inspect the various automobiles and surged up North Chestnut street where the parade was forming.

Early this afternoon a slight shower failed to drive the people off the streets and good crowds witnessed all the performances. Weather indications for tonight are for fair weather and another large crowd is anticipated.

Arrangements have been completed for the Mardi Gras carnival on Friday evening. A parade of all the revellers will start from the corner of Second and Ewing promptly at 8:15 o'clock. None but those who are masked will be allowed in the parade, which will move down Second to Chestnut, south on Chestnut to Bruce, and countermarch on Chestnut to Second, where it will disband. Unusual interest is being manifested

FESTIVAL SCENES WILL BE SHOWN BY MOTION PICTURES

Indianapolis Concern Will Send Photographer Here to Snap the Dedication Scene.

Through the Co-operative Theatrical Booking Association arrangements have been made to have moving pictures taken of the festival scenes. The floral parade will be repeated again at 4:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon and the camera man will be prepared to snap the scene.

H. H. Coburn, of Indianapolis, will bring his camera here tonight and will make arrangements for the pictures. The dedication of the Farmers' Club building will be included in the reel. The pictures will be used on one of the large circuits of the United States and will be shown in hundreds of places. As soon as the films are developed they will be returned here and shown at the Majestic Theatre.

STRANGER "HELD UP" AND ROBBED OF HIS WATCH

Loss of Timepiece and $4 in Silver Reported to Police but Robbers Escape Arrest.

A stranger who arrived in this city late Tuesday night via box car Pullman was held up in the B. & O. Southwestern Railroad yards shortly after he reached the city. He was stopped by two men who asked him what time it was. The stranger desired to accomodate them and as he exhibited his watch at revolver was flashed in his face and the title of the timepiece was instantly changed to the unknown parties.

The stranger told the police that besides his silver watch he had also been robbed of four dollars in silver. He was able to give a description of the hold-up men and the police endeavored to locate them but were unsuccessful.

CORDIAL WELCOME WILL BE EXTENDHD

Festival Committees and Commercial Organizations will Meet Columbus Delegation.

RECEPTION AT THE CLUB

Visitors will be Greeted at Interurban Station and Parade will then Take Place.

Columbus business men and citizens who will visit the Fall Festival Thursday night will be extended a cordial welcome by the local commercial organizations and Festival committees. The visitors will be met at the traction station by the members of the several committees, the Commercial Club and the Retail Merchants' Association.

It is expected that the cars will arrive about 7 o'clock and as soon as the visitors are all here a parade will be formed, headed by the Zouave Band and the Columbus Band, recognized as one of the best in Indiana. The members of the festival committee will follow the bands then will come the Fetail Merchants' Association and the Commercial Club. The Columbus visitors will be taken to Second street, south on Chestnut to Bruce, countermarching on Chestnut to the Farmers Club building.

At that place the local reception committee will receive the Columbus visitors and an opportunity will be given them to inspect the new building. The local people want their Columbus friends to have the best possible time and have left nothing undone to make the evening enjoyable. After the reception at the Club building the visitors will be escorted to the various entertainments and some special features will be given that night.

It is expected that between seven and eight hundred Columbus people will attend the festival Thursday. It is reported that already about seven hundred tickets have been sold for the special cars and that others will come in their automobiles and on traction cars and trains during the day. There is much interest at Columbus in the Festival here and many local people have extended special invitations to their friends there to spend the day with them.

The Seymour people will be glad of the opportunity of welcoming their neighbors to the north and hope that through this visit a lasting friendship will be created which will work to the benefit of both cities. Being situated only eighteen miles apart the cities are similar in many respects and there is no reason why there should not be a closer neighborly feeling.

The local business men and citizenszens fully appreciate the courtesy of the Columbus people in coming in such large number to the Festival and trust that at some future day the compliments may be returned. With the presence of so many visitors from the city Thursday night promises to be one of the "biggest" nights of the entire festival and the committees are giving particular attention to the accomodation of the crowds.

Invading Forces Said to be Enjoying Uninterrupted Success in Driving French Back.

By United Press.

Berlin, October 7—(By Wireless)—The capture of Antwerp is certain within a few days at the most, was the announcement made by the general staff today. It was stated that two additional forts have surrendered to the Germans. Bombardment with the big siege guns proved too much for the garrisons and after the walls of the forts had been battered almost to powder the garrisons surrendered.

The bombardment of the outer ring of forts is being pushed and the general staff is confident the Belgian resistance cannot be continued much longer.

The Belgians issued a statement that the Germans are enjoying uninterrupted success in France and are gradually driving the French back. The fighting is of the most bitter character but at several points, the reports days the resistance of the Allies has noticeably decreasd.

A big battle is expected soon on the Eastern frontier where the Germans are everywhere on the offensive.

MILLERS THROUGH NINE GENERATIONS MANUFACTURE SAME BRAND OF FLOUR

From The Tide Water Mill of Barnstable, Mass. in 1658 to The Present High Powered Plant With a Capacity of 1200 Barrels Per Day.

THE BLISH FAMILY HAVE BEEN MILLERS

Seymour Has One of The Most Progressive and Best Equipped Flour Mills in The Country—Whose Products Reach World's Largest Markets.

If Abraham Blish, who in 1658 first operated the little old tide mill at Barnstable, Mass., should come back to earth and view the immense milling business being done by his descendants operating under the firm name of the Blish Milling Company, in Seymour, what would be his wonderment to see that from his little old water power mill with a capacity of about ten barrels of flour a day and that of uncertain quality had grown to one of the greatest milling concerns in the county, with a capacity of 1200 barrells of flour a day and every barrel of an exact standard, which standard is the very highest.

Abraham Blish's market was probably bounded within a radius of a dozen miles of Barnstable, the markets of the Blish Milling Company of today take in the most important cities of America, England, Germany, France and Scotland. Where the first Blish sold a sack of flour to a customer who took it home in front of him on his horse's back, today the firm ships it away from Seymour in whole train loads, a good part of which goes to the sea board where it is sent to Europe, entering into competition with the greatest milling concerns of both America and the old countries.

The Blish Milling Company is composed of M. S. Blish, president; T. S. Blish, Vice President and Blish Thompson, Secretary and sales manager. These men are the direct descendants through nine generations of millers of Abraham Blish, the original maker of Copyright flour at Barnstable, Mass. To many of the older citizens of Jackson county the firm names of Shields & Blish, John H. Blish, J. H. Blish & Co., M. S. Blish & Co., are familiar not only for their ability as millers but for their activity in public life and their interest in the welfare of the community.

The site of the present mill was chosen in 1851 by Meedy Shields, and a small mill was built which, from time to time, at the demands of increasing business, was enlarged and improved until today it stands as one of the finest equipped flour mills using the most advanced methods and the management always alive to any advantages of improved machinery that may aid them in keeping their product up to the very highest standard.

A trip through this great mill is a treat and though one may realize some of the different processes that wheat goes through in the manufacture of flour it is certainly worth one's time to follow it from the farmer's wagon through the mill to the great packing room where it is made ready for transportation.

In the first place it is a known fact that the wheat raised in Indiana is the finest milling wheat in the world and especially is that true of the southern Indiana wheat. James Shields realized that fact when he selected southern Indiana for his mill site and time has proven that he knew what he was doing. This fact with the inherited and acquired ability as millers have enabled the Blish Company to keep their Copyright, Colonial, Success and Honey Boy brands of flour in the front rank of quality flours, as all of these brands are made from Indiana grown wheat and the bulk of it from wheat grown in southern Indiana.

During the harvesting season long lines of farm wagons are waiting their turn at the mill to dispose of the season's wheat crop, as high as 150 wagon loads of wheat have been cleaned, weighed and sent to the great storage tanks in one day.

The first process in the manufacturing of flour is the cleaning of the wheat as it is brought in by the farmer often direct from the threshing machine, as the wheat is unloaded it is dumped directly into a great Prince Rau cleaning machine where all of the grains not of the proper quality and any other foreign seeds are eliminated and returned to the farmer. This cleaning process may be resorted to more than once in case the wheat is not of the best quality. From the cleaning machine it is automatically hoisted to the scale hoffer where it is tested weighed and an accounting made with the farmer. From the scale hoffer it is automatically carried to the great Pneumatic steel storage tanks, their capacity being such that great quantities of the best grain of each crop can be brought and stored till needed, making the Blish Company practically independent of the large grain markets and their elevator blends. The wheat in these storage elevators is constantly watched and inspected by an expert whose sole duty is to keep the wheat in good condition.

From the storage tanks the wheat is drawn into an automatic scale with a capacity of ten bushels. This wheat is not drawn from one bin but from several different ones so that in each dumping of the scale there may be found wheat from all parts of southern Indiana. This mixing of wheat grown in different localities is found to keep the quality of the flour up to a higher and more exact standard. After the weighing the wheat is passed through two milling separators when the process of cleaning the wheat is continued from the separators. It is sent through two more dry scouring machines, then dampened and scoured again. Although it would seem that the wheat would now be perfectly clean and it certainly looks the part, no chances are taken and it is now sent through live steam which leaves it in an absolutely sanitary condition and as clean as human power can make it.

The wheat is now ready for the crusher where it is crushed fine enough to separate the bran from the flour. This crushed mass is then taken through eight great sifters, the bran separated from the flour and all flour that is not fine enough by this operation is reduced again. After the crushing operation the flour is sent through smooth rollers with a special cooling apparatus and is reduced to the desired quality that is required by the different brands.

After all the crushing, rolling and purifying processes the flour is sifted through bolting silk. This silk ranges from the finest mesh of 820 to the square inch down to 16 mesh the inch. Now the flour is ready for packing and is carried automatically to the packing department where it is packed in sacks or barrels as the occasion may be.

During all this time human hands have not touched the wheat nor flour, from the time it has left the farmer's wagon. Everything has been done automatically and under conditions that tend to the greatest cleanliness and sanitation possibly. One of the first things noticed by a visitor to the Blish Mill is the fact that things are as clean and free from dirt and dust as it is possible to make it.

The packing department is a great smooth floored room with great stacks of sacks and barrels of flour, bran and mixed feed ready to be shipped. The cars from the B. & O. S-W. and Pennsylvania railroad are switched directly to the packing department doors quickly loaded and on their way. The products that are shipped to Europe are carried by the B. & O. S-W., giving direct shipping connections to the Atlantic coast.

All of this great mass of machinery must have power to propel it, and a visit to the engine and boiler room is now in line. There, as in the mill, you will find everything done automatically. The coal for the two great Heine boilers, each 225-horse power, is taken direct from the cars, automatically to the automatic stocker which feeds the fire as regularly and with more ease and economy than man can do. The water supply is attended to automatically. Twenty ton of coal a day is required to furnish the power for the mills.

In the engine room a 600-horse power Compound Buckeye engine with a twelve foot pulley is connected with the main drive shaft for the mill. This shaft is nine feet in diameter and the two are connected with a 42-inch trifle ply leather belt, the whole system is automatically oiled and controlled. Here, too, is manufactured the electricity for lighting the mill and the Blish family homes. The same clean appearance is carried into the engine and boiler rooms. Everything is spick, span and shining.

One of the striking features noticed while passing through the mill are the devices to be used in case of fire, one of the newest which has only been installed a short time. It is the overhead sprinkling system which, in case of fire automatically turns on the water. These sprinklers are located overhead and at every ten feet square of space. Also another addition is the location of a great gong on the outside of the building, one on each side that sounds an alarm automatically in case of fire, that is not promptly discovered. While these arrangements are primarily for fire prevention and detection, they are equally valuable in the reduction of the rate of insurance which is quite an item when it is considered, the large amount that must be carried on a concern and the contents of a factory of this size.

The Blish Milling Co. looks after the comforts of their employes in a manner seldom seen; automatic elevators are running continually from top to bottom of the mill on which an employe rides if he has business on another floor. Splendid well lighted wash rooms and separate lockers for the men's clothing are provided and in many ways employes are made as comfortable as possible and the men appreciate it too, at least if the time of service with the company is any criterion.

Joseph Rottman, mill superintendent has been in the employ of the company 27 years.

G. W. Hunterman, local manager, 27 years.

David Rich, foreman packing room, 27 years.

Elias Champion, day watchman, 27 years.

A. G. Kennard, night watchman, 27 years.

Wm. M. Hopkins, teamster, 12 years.

And so on down the line, one might go and enumerate many others who have been with Blish's for years and who expect to remain a great many more.

Not only are the comforts of the employes carefully looked after but that of the farmers as well. A fine exchange department is conducted where a farmer may receive any of the mill's products in exchange for his wheat. Seed wheat is cleaned for farmers without cost to them. Working along this line of furthering the interest of the farmer has resulted in the building of The Farmers Club, a beautiful building where farmers may congregate and rest without cost to themselves.

Mr. T. S. Blish in speaking of the mill's export trade said: "We have been wonderfully successful along this line, our exportation began in 1889 when a trial order of three hundred 140-lb. bags was sent to Mowat Bros. of Glasgow and it seemed to meet with immediate success, the foreign demand has increased largely and since then we have exported over a million and a quarter bags of flour. We have been especially fortunate in the last few weeks when the war had closed so many shipping avenues in placing our goods with the proper steamship companies for delivering and while some mills have practically stopped their exports, ours has not decreased, in fact if anything they have increased. One ship sailing for Europe a short time ago carried no other flour in her cargo but "Copyright." One of the reasons of our success abroad, as well as at home is the fact that we grade our flour very carefully and each grade is suitable to the uses of some certain branch of the baking trade, then to keep the quality at the highest and most regular standard so that a man who for instance uses "Success" flour in doing certain kinds of baking will find that he may use the same brand again for the same purpose and obtain the same results."

In speaking of the mechanical features of the mill Mr. Blish continued: "I believe that our mill is one of the representative flouring mills of the country as we have spared no expense to keep in the front ranks, every new feature in machinery that will aid us in making better flour has been added to our equipment and there is no idea that is proposed to us that is too small to consider, if it looks as though it would help along this line."

The four main brands of flour manufactured are "Copyright," "Colonial," "Success" and "Honey Boy," the first two brands being the finest flour that can be produced, the "Copyright" brand being the name used for the flour made in the mill in Barnstable in 1658, along with the "Copyright" brand goes the "Colonial" it too being of the very finest quality.

The "Success" brand is the most popular brand and the largest seller, it meets all of the requirements for family use and general baking.

"Honey Boy" is a self-rising flour being already leavened and is considered the very finest flour of this nature. A great deal of time was spent in experimenting on this flour before it was placed on the market so that it might grade up to the high standard of the other brands and the very best baking results obtained. "Honey Boy" is an especially fine biscuit flour, with ordinary flour, not everyone can make good biscuits; with "Honey Boy," anyone can make them. There is no chance of failure. The proper amount of leavening has been scientifically and correctly mixed for your convenience. Some people like tall, flaky biscuits; some fat, crusty ones. A few suggestions may help you to serve just the kind you like.

Success in making "Honey Boy" biscuits depends only on the amount of milk and lard added. The real secret is in handling the flour lightly, yet to get a thorough blend of the milk and the larded flour. Handle lightly. Do not knead and you will have the most appetizing biscuits you have ever eaten. Water may be used in place of milk, but milk is decidedly preferable.

Black spots, which occur on baking powder biscuits, indicate that your dough was too dry or that dry self-rising flour was sprinkled on the tops of the biscuits or on rolling board, the heat causing the dry leavening to burn. This is all done away with, in using "Honey Boy." Good biscuits are the result of it's use.

The by-products consist of "Bulls Eye" bran and "Red Dog" middlings, both of which are unsurpassed in quality and are known from coast to coast, being shipped all over the country in car load lots.

During the Free Fall Festival the Blish Milling Company is making a display in the Manufacturers tent of unusual interest, showing the many different brands manufactured and where they are shipped, as it is found that nearly every section of the country has some special liking in the flour line that must be catered to.

Severe Blood Troubles Vanish

At almost any drug store you may obtain S. S. S., the famous blood purifier, and you then have the veritable wizard that makes all blood troubles vanish. Your stomach takes kindly to S. S. S., it rushes into your blood, is a purifying wave, makes the liver, kidneys, bladder and skin work in harmony; stops accumulations that have caused rheumatism, catarrh, swollen glands, sore throat and skin eruptions.

Just as food makes blood, so does S. S. S. follow the process of digestion to stimulate natural secretions to protect us against the ravages of disease germs. We are well aware of the fact that these germs are apt to be latent within us to break forth in violent eruptions of the skin whenever the system is in a low state of resistance. And it is to both prevent these eruptions or to get rid of them that Nature gave us such an ally as S. S. S. It is purely vegetable, contains no mercury, and yet it overcomes those serious troubles for which mercury has been employed for ages. In every community are people who know this to be true. They owe to S. S. S. their recovery. Get a bottle today. Refuse all substitutes. Read the folder around the bottle that tells of the wonderful work being done by the medical department in assisting users of S. S. S. For a special book on blood troubles address The Swift Specific Co., 51 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

THE TARIFF LAW A FAILURE

(Cincinnati Enquirer.)

The direct tax bill now under consideration in the United States Senate proposes to place additional burdens upon active business operations of the people of the United States.

There seems to be no end of these efforts to make the energetic, the active, the industrious, bear the cost of government or misgovernment; to compel them to furnish the funds for government expenditure; to make them the burden bearers in every form, shape and manner, mere tribute bringers to those in political power.

This is the odious process of the middle ages; this is the form of taxation that was practiced by the overlords, the robbing Barons, Princes and Sovereigns of the European and Atlantic continents in the days when liberty was unknown and tyranny was universal; this is the process that prevents progress, that stifles prosperity, that hinders the extension and expansion of commerce, that blights industry and compels bad times.

The Democratic party, in time of peace, through failure of it tariff legislation to produce sufficient revenue to cover the expenses of the Government, now goes on record as confessing that failure by bringing forward a tax measure calculated to compel the business interests of the United States to pay $100,000,000 per annum into the treasury of the republic.

This is a confession of a legislative failure; it is confession of a financial blunder in legislation; it is, a new record, a poor record, a fatal record for the party in power to make when it has to go before the people for approval of such a huge new tax at a time when it congratulates itself as preserving the peace for the republic both at home and abroad.

The business interests of the country have been slurred, abused, buffeted, called lobbyists, investigated, and many of them slandered for years in the past, and now they are to be held up by the Federal Government with demands for $1,00,000,000 more taxes in a time of profound peace.

Throughout Latin America the entire theory of taxation is that of making the active business of the country bear the burdens of the costs of government, and this Mexican system is now finding favor with the Democratic leaders who propose this war tax when there is no war, even to protect our citizens abused and insulted, humiliated and robbed in foreign lands.

The United States Senate should refuse to pass this measure of taxation directed against the live and active business interests of their country

The Democratic declaration of a tariff for revenue only should have been adhered to in letter and in form, and that tariff should have been made sufficient in its provisions to have produced the revenue required to run the Government.

Let that tariff be revised now; let it be made a greater revenue producer; better a confession of the failure of the revision by agreeing to amend than by this effort to tax the active business interests of the United States.

wagon was artistically decorated. The ladders were covered with golden rod and each horse wore a red plume in his bridle. The wagon was in charge of Meade Downs. On the wagon was Chief Everhart and John Fleehearty.

The old hose reel, one of the first pieces of equipment owned by the fire department, was decorated with flowers and followed the combination wagon. To many fires this reel has been pulled by hand and it was fitting that it should be at the head of the parade. The white horses were driven by Melvin Jerrell.

The old "Capt. M. W. Shields engine" was covered with flowers. The horses were driven by Ira McConnell and Joe Day acted as engineer.

The first decorated machine was that of John Lyman and Meedy Blish, which was patriotically festooned with red, white and blue, floated a beautiful flowered American flag, and was guided by a huge eagle. The car was driven by Lyman Blish and was occupied by several of his young friends.

Fred Able's car was very artistically decorated in white and yellow chrysanthemums and yellow tulle. From this car Miss Blanche Barick and Miss Lois Reynolds threw fall flowers into the crowds, and Miss Reynolds, accompanied by the band, sang "I'm on My Way to Mandalay" and "My Crooning Melody."

W. H. Willman's car, driven by Honan Willman, was very beautiful in its garb of dog wood, golden rod and other fall blossoms.

The car of Mrs. Tilden Smith was distinctively attractive, being decorated with cedar, iron weed and ferns, with a huge yellow butterfly in front. Ribbons attached to the butterfly were handled by little Miss Smith, making a very pretty effect, and suggested to one observer "The Girl of the Limberlost."

The big seven passenger machine belonging to Mrs. Jerry Anderson, was driven by her daughter, Mrs. H. G. Stratton, and was one of the most elaborately decorated in the parade. The automobile was decorated with scores of sunflowers placed on a background of green. The wheels were completely covered. In the machine were a number of young ladies each dressed in white and wearing a large sunflower hat.

The automobile of Will Hustedt was the "Uncle Sam" automobile. Fred Stapp was at the wheel. The machine was profusely decorated with national colors and Uncle Sam waved a salute to the crowds at the car passed along the route.

Over the machine of R. J. Barbour' drived by the owner, was a frame work of autumn flowers and leaves. The machine was artistic and attracted much attention.

The seven passenger car of T. S. Blish was decorated to represent a yacht and received many favorable comments. The floral decorations were in white, against which the American flag stood out in marked contrast. Mr. Blish and the members of his family were dressed in white sailor costumes. The machine was driven by the chauffeur, Brainard McCoy.

The Willey Garage had a machine in the parade decorated with American colors. It was driven by Clark J. Willey.

The M. S. Blish electric car was driven by Mrs. Blish who was accompanied by Mrs. H. C. Johnson. The machine was decorated to represent a swan and was very attractive.

Mrs. J. F. Shiel drove a handsomely decorated machine. The car was covered with white flowers and was decorated with golden stars. Golden rod was used in abundance in the decorations.

The idea of a nation desiring peace and directed by Uncle Sam, was presented in the uniquely decorated machine of Frank Bush who was at the wheel. Little Donald Bush occupied a chair placed on a platform in the rear of the machine and held the lines to the "angle of peace." "Peace" was represented by little Kathleen McDonald. The colors were green and purple. The greenery was draped over the wheels so that they were not visible.

The machine of Blish Thompson was decorated as a battleship which must have been in a fight at sea as the pilot wore a blood stained bandage about his forehead. Mrs. Thompson was the captain and with the aid of field glasses, kept close watch for the approach of the enemy.

The Seymour Ice Cream Company was represented by a novel float which was attractively decorated with National colors. Along the sides were suspended hundreds of ice cream cones. The wagon was filled with packers ready for delivery.

One of the most attractive entries was that of Alfred Reynolds, who drove his handsome thoroughbred. The vehicle was artistically decorated in white and the harness was white. Every part of the buggy was covered with white cloth or flowers. He was accompanied by his sister, Miss Lora Reynolds.

Herman Chambers very ingeniously converted his car into a minature restaurant. Master Robert and Miss Ruth Chambers and Miss Lucile Bender had complete charge of the dining room. The car was prettily decorated in the Festival colors and American Flags.

A very attractive car was the one which represented the Robinson-Norton Co. of Louisville, Ky. Two of their salesmen, J. L. Blair and Henry Aufderheide reside here, and they had as their guests today D. Barkley Jr., C. B. Norton and L. N. Watts, other representatives of the firm. The car was driven by W. L. Clark and was beautifully decorated in pink and white carnations, with a large Eagle and a battery of American flags on the hood.

Albert Ahlbrand's car was uniquely arranged to represent a submarine torpedo boat, and showed considerable skill and originality.

The car representing the Gold Mine Department store was very attractive and received much favorable comment. The decorations were of red and yellow chrysanthemuns and showed a beautiful display of the new fall styles of millinery and fall outfits, becomingly worn by the Misses Margaret Miller, Helen Galbraith and Luella Toms.

Probably one of the most unique and original decorative schemes was the one employed by E. B. Bryan, of the Seymour Poultry Co. Mr. Bryan had his car completely covered with white turkey feathers and had a large white turkey perched on the hood.

L. R. Fosgate's car was beautifully decorated with American flags and festival colors.

In the car owned and driven by C. E. Abel, D. O. Dunn had quite a novel advertisement of his Star Bread. A whole auto load of children were labeled "Bread in Jackson County."

E. C. Bollinger's car was very artistically decorated in white and purple wisteria, and made a beautiful showing.

W. E. Hoadley & Son had a novel advertisement of Red Goose School Shoes in their carriage.

Among other cars entered in the parade were those of H. Nichter, Ed Miller, Chester Miller and Harold Stewart.

Greatest Stove Ever Made

FOR BURNING SOFT COAL OR SLACK

Remember it is not what it costs to buy a stove, but what it costs to run it that bothers the people. Remember the Florence is the only smoke consuming stove on earth and that means the saving of 65 to 70 per cent. in coal above any other heating stove on earth.

Come and see the wonderful FLORENCE HOT BLAST. Let us explain why it will burn soft coal and slack with as steady heat as hard coal in a base burner. This marvelous Heater will burn soft coal and slack without any smoke; can be fed with the cheapest kind of fuel and refuse and will produce heat of amazing intensity. It will burn its own smoke, consume its own gas and through other wonderful workings will convince every beholder that it is a MARVEL AMONG HEATERS.

THE J. B. HOWARD COMBUSTION DEVICE, which has made the HOT BLAST AIR-TIGHT FLORENCE famous, is the only absolute smoke consuming device that has ever been constructed in the history of the burning of bituminous coal and the patent has been sustained three different times by the United States Courts.

NO SMOKE! NO SOOT! NO DIRT!

Everything Consumed.

NO CLINKERS FROM HARD OR SOFT COAL!

Ashes as Fine as Powder.

THE MOST ECONOMICAL STOVE ON EARTH!

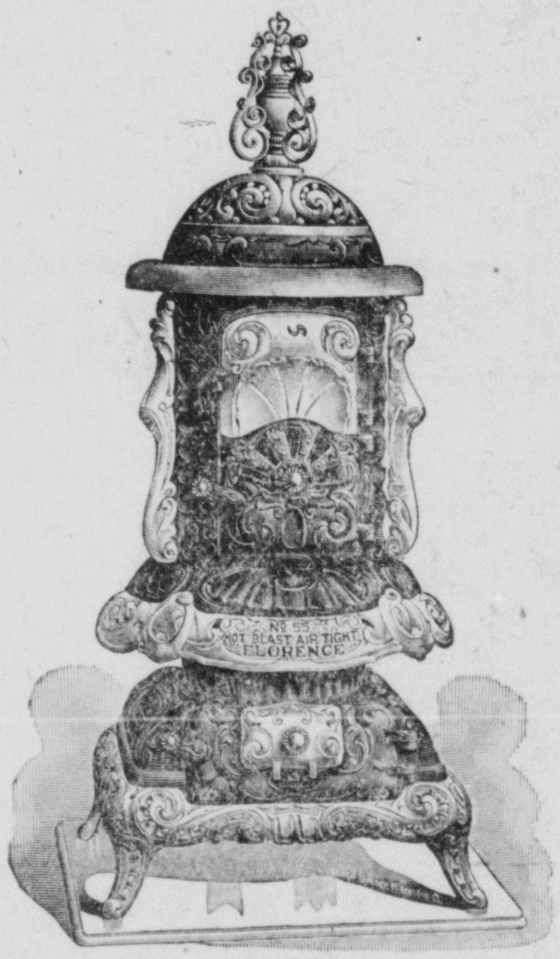
It is not the original cost of a stove, but it is what it costs to operate it that counts. THE FLORENCE is an investment. It pays for itself in a very short time.

As a fire keeper it will be just as good 20 years from now. If the fire pot cracks inside of 5 years we will give you one free of charge.

THE ONLY FLOOR HEATER ON THE MARKET
Or That Has Ever Been Made

THE FLORENCE

Has twice the life of any other stove, because the Florence burns out the fuel; in all other stoves the fuel burns out the stove. It is truly a marvel—the most wonderful stove ever invented.



If the Florence is Operated According to Directions:

The No. 21 will heat one small room all winter with two tons of slack or lump coal.

The No. 48 will heat two or three small rooms all winter with two and three-fourths tons of slack or lump coal.

The No. 51 or No. 33 will heat three or four rooms all winter with three tons of slack or lump coal.

The No. 53 or No. 35 will heat five rooms all winter with four tons of slack or lump coal.

The No. 55 or No. 37 will heat a large store or school room with six tons of slack or lump coal. For a church less coal will be required.

Will burn a ton less of hard coal than a hard coal Base Burner of the same size and heat twice the space.

The No. 55 Ex. Top is most generally used for heating a large space and takes the same amount of coal as No. 55.

First M. E. Parsonage painted with Lucas Tinted Gloss Paint.

Seven years ago the M. E. Parsonage was painted with Lucas Paint. The job was so thoroughly satisfactory that when the building was repainted this spring the committee again specified Lucas Paint.

This is an ideal time to paint. The weather is right, the price of paint is right and it is right that your home should have the protection of a coat of good paint during the coming winter.

Lucas Paint is the finished product of over sixty years of paint making experience.

Don't take chances on new anduntried brands of paint.

SENATOR PLANS TO END LONG DEBATES

Senator Owens Proposed that Discussions May be Terminated Within Two Days.

SOME MEMBERS OPPOSE IT

Under Present Rules Debate May Continue Indefinitely if Speaker is Physically Able.

(By Burton K. Standish for the United Press.)

Washington, October 7.—After the end of the next session of Congress, if predictions of Senator Owens, of Oklahoma, are accurate, there will be no more tiresome unending debates in the United States Senate. It will be possible, if the plan of the Oklahoma senate is carried out, to make a motion at any time in the consideration of any bill to bring debate to a close within two days, half the time remaining after the motion is carried to be assigned to each side of the argument.

For obvious reasons no fight is being made at this session to put through any such "radical" rule. A number of the older senators are desperately opposed to any change, and would filibuster it against it.

Under the present rules, if enough of them got together and continued to talk, it would be impossible for a vote ever to be reached, so that plenty of time would be lost to put through this time-saving rule. But time is just what there is a scarcity of at this session of Congress, which has already dragged alng to almost record-breaking time length, and threatened to continue up until December when the next regular session begins.

A striking example of what one senator is able to do in the way of obstructing legislation was shown in the action of Senator Burton, of Ohio, in opposing passage of the rivers and harbors "pork barrel" bill. Under the present rules a senator may discuss a bill for a year continuously, if he is physically able to do so, nor is he confined to the subject under discussion.

They still tell the story of how "Pitchfork Ben" Tillman on one occasion, while filibustering against some measure to wrich he particularly objected, quoted a word in a peculiar sense. His use of the word was questioned, whereupon he had a dictionary brought in, and, to prove that the definition of the words and definitions in that dictionary was to be accepted, read page after page of words and definitions to prove that the dictionary he quoted was an authority which could be accepted.

The principal defense of the present system is that no filibuster could succeed which did not have a tremendous popular sentiment behind it. It is pointed out that if Senator Burton did not have strong support to prevent the passage of the rivers and harbors bill, he would not have been able to resist the outcry which might have been aroused by the terrific waste of time to which he is resorting. It is pointed out that Senator Gorman, of Maryland, was cherished until he died, (except on one or two occasions) by the people of that state because of his famous filibuster which prevented the passage of the Force bill. Senator Owen himself, who is leading the fight for cloture in the Senate, was recently taxed by Senator Gallinger, of New Hampshire, with having filibustered against the bill admitting Arizona and New Mexico as one state. He retorted that he was proud of his action on that occasion, and, as long as the rules permitted, would not hesitate to take advantage of another opportunity to kill a piece of legislation he considered bad.

Here's "one" they're telling on Democratic Leader Oscar Underwood.

When debate was raging over whether gasline should be taxed two cents a gallon in the "war tax" bill, Underwood was at the White House. A friend—an automobilist—buttonholed Underwood to protest against the proposed "gas" tax.

"You shouldn't mind paying a small tax like than on gasoline," said Underwood. "I'm sure I would not."

"But," his friend retorted, "you drive an electric car." The Alabama statesman, who drove an electric runabout, joined in the laugh which followed.

Secretary of State Bryan has placed a ban of grape juice, the drink he helped make famus. Finding grape juice at his plate at all functins of which he has been invited and grape juice in cases, the gift of admiring friends, piling up in his cellar, and making its way almost daily to his table, the Secretary's stomach finally rebelled.

This, his friends say, explains why "Villa Sorrento limeade," made from fruit picked from the Secretary's summer home in Florida, was dedicated at the diplomatic luncheon he gave the other day as the new Bryan soft drink.

But the secretary is not looking for contributions of limeade. His grape juice experience demonstrated to his satisfaction that, whatever may be its effect in other kinds of drinks, a certain mixing of soft drinks is demanded.

OFFERS NEW SCHEME FOR LABOR PROBLEM

Chicago City Market Commission Formulates Program to Handle Unemployes Labor.

By United Press.

Chicago, Oct. 7—Cooperating with various charity organizations, the city marketing commission, which has touched the problem of the unemployed in its campaign for municipal markets, has formulated a program for handling the labor problem this winter and has sent it to the Chamber of Commerce and leading employers of labor for approval.

The marketing commission suggests that before winter sets in the city take a definite stand against being made the dumping ground of thousands of floaters who drift into Chicago every fall to spend the winter. It believes that if the city and employers alike announce that residents of Chicago will be given the preference in hiring men through the winter months, this movement will be checked.

Big employers are urged to aid the workers during the winter months by putting employes on half pay, instead of cutting their forces in half if business conditions make any reductions necessary. They are further urged to give preference to married men, or those supporting dependents, if lopping names off the pay roll becomes a necessity.

Department stores and factories employing girls are asked to retain girls who must support themselves in preference to those who are seeking work to earn "pin money." The situation among the working girls, the commission declared, demands particular attention.

As the first step in carrying out this program, the commission suggested that all big employers submit careful estimates of the number of employes they believe they must discharge January 1, if they are convinced reductions in working forces must be made. With this data on hand, the commission proposes to establish a municipal employment exchange and make immediate efforts to secure work for persons who may find themselves without jobs during the winter.

AMERICAN TROOPERS VICTIMS OF SNIPERS

Washington, Oct. 7.—General Bliss, commanding the border forces, has telegraphed the war department that no serious attack on Naco by the Villa forces under General Maytorena need be expected for a week.

Naco, Ariz., Oct. 7.—United States army officers report that their men have been subjected to Mexican fire every time they stand up in their observation trenches, 200 yards north of the boundary. Captain Holcomb, commanding Troop B, Tenth cavalry, said a machine gun was turned on his men Monday night, and bullets flew over their heads. Captain Holcomb himself was the target for five Mexican bullets as he was riding back to camp.

Colonel Guilfoyle, commanding the American troops on border patrol duty, notified General Hill, the Naco garrison commander, that he would personally be held responsible if Mexican bullets were fired into American territory. Hill instituted an investigation and announced that the shooting was being directed at the American troopers by John Valentine, a negro deserter from Troop B, Tenth U. S. cavalry. Hill ordered the negro sent back to the American side of the line after learning his identity.

Private Leroy Bradford was struck in the breast by a bullet fired from the trenches occupied by troops of General Hill. Hill's men assert that Valentine fired the shot. Bradford's wound is serious.

Valentine, who escaped across the line to the Carranza forces some time ago, subsequently threatened to shoot several of his former comrades and his former commander, Captain Holcomb.

Casualties on the American side of the line now total three—two soldiers and a boy who was hit in the hand by a stray bullet. Two cavalry horses also have been shot.

Maytorena sent emissaries to Hill with a plan said to have been inspired by General Villa, that an armistice be declared pending the outcome of the Aguas Calientes peace conference. Hill declined to answer and Maytorena's Yaqui Indians advanced later for an attack, but promptly retreated under heavy fire.

New York, Oct. 7.—"Red" Smith, star third baseman of the champion Boston Nationals, is laid up with a badly fractured and dislocated right leg. Brest, Oct. 7.—French warships have captured and brought into this port a German bark and a Norwegian ship. The latter had a cargo of nickel.

VICE ADMIRAL KAMINURA.

SEIZURE OF ISLAND IS NOT PERMANENT

This Is the Assurance Tokio Gives Washington.

Tokio, Oct. 7.—The admiralty's announcement of the taking of Jaluit says that part of the Japanese fleet went out for the purpose of destroying the enemy's squadron supposed to be cruising in the south seas. It confirms the report that it met with no resistance and destroyed the military establishments at Jaluit and seized the munitions of war. It also liberated a British merchantman held at Jaluit.

Washington, Oct. 7.—The concern caused here by the announcement from Tokio of the seizure by Japanese naval forces of Jaluit island of the Marshall group of islands in the Pacific was somewhat allayed by assurances both from Tokio and the Japanese embassy that the step merely was one of military necessity and not to be regarded as indicating permanent occupation by Japan. Jaluit island is just about midway between Hawaii and the Philippines. It is now believed that in view of the sensitiveness of the American public on the question of the extension of Japanese influence in the Pacific, where the United States has such extensive interests, there will be promptly forthcoming assurances of an even more definite character than those given.

The explanation of this step offered here on behalf of Japan is that the seizure of Jaluit island was essential for the protection of British and Japanese commerce. It was said that a few German cruisers have been playing havoc with both Japanese and British commerce in the Pacific, and the belief of the British and Japanese governments has been that the enemy's cruisers were using Jaluit as a base.

It would occasion no surprise here if the Japanese government should ask the British forces to take over Jaluit island and thus relieve itself entirely of all connection with the German possession.

RUSHING REINFORCEMENTS

Ostend Reports Important Movement of German Troops.

Ostend, Oct. 7.—A very important movement of German troops in southern Belgium is reported. A column 20,000 strong, horse, foot and artillery, with a commissariat convoy and wireless apparatus marched through Templeuve, north of Tournai, in the direction of the French frontier to the west. They were all young men.

NEED NEWSPAPERS— THEY ADMIT

"Our Company can advertise their products nationally until it is blue in the face, but it cannot produce results for the local dealer unless he advises prospective customers where the machines can be bought in his particular territory."

This is an extract from a letter being sent out by a large manufacturer, who believes he is a national advertiser.

He is spending thousands of dollars for advertising and yet he admits that if the dealers do not in turn use their home newspapers it is lost money.

The lesson is obvious.

THE DAILY NEWSPAPER IS THE DIRECT ROUTE FROM PRODUCTION TO SALE.

No advertising campaign—national or local, can succeed without the newspapers.

Festival Notes.

The Zouave Band in their natty costumes made a favorable impression with the crowds.

The Made in Jackson Co. exhibit is a revelation to visitors and is being visited by immerse crowds.

Out of town people should remember they can have parcels checked free of charge at the parcel booth in front of the Gold Mine Furniture Annex.

Hundreds viewed the interior of the Farmers' Club Building for the first time and all were impressed with the beauty and completeness of the structure.

Many of Seymour's citizens are contemplating becoming farmers so they may enjoy the privileges of the Farmers' Club.

"Seymour has outdone herself" was the remark of more than one out of town visitor.

The Merry-Go-Round" and Ferris Wheel did a whirling business all evening.

The crowd on Thursday promises to upset all records. Sec'y. Houston is assured an immense audience.

The display of the W. C. Bevins Co., showing a complete outfit for equipping country homes with water and electric lights, is attracting much attention.

The entertainment committee certainly deserves credit for the excellence of the attractions they selected.

There is the usual number, probably more, of cracker jack and hamburger merchants.

It is a significant fact that several members of the committee which so successfully engineered the first street fair back in 1897 are the most enthusiastic workers in the Festival this year.

There will be very few in Columbus Thursday night. There's a reason.

They are declared to have withdrawn large forces from the center to reenforce the left wing to avert disaster. The official report says the German offensive in left of the battle line is constantly increasing in intensity and the French is being constantly driven back.

From Brown to Gray.

"You, Marta—you are still there!" Lanstron exclaimed in alarm when he heard her voice over the tunnel telephone. "But safe!" he added in relief. "Thank God for that! It's a mighty load off my mind. And your mother?"

"Safe, too."

"Well, you're through the worst of it. There won't be any more fighting around the house, and certainly Westerling will be courteous. But where is Gustave?"

"Gone!"

"Gone!" he repeated dismally.

"Wait until you hear how he went," Marta said. With all the vividness of her impressions, a partisan for the moment of him and Dellarme, she sketched Feller's part with the automatic.

As he listened, Lanstron's spirit was twenty again.

"I can see him," he said. "It was a full breath of fresh air to the lungs of a suffocating man. I—"

Marta was off in interruption in the full tide of an appeal.

"You must—I promised—you must let him have the uniform again!" she begged. "You must let him keep his automatic. To take it away would be like separating mother and child; like separating Minna from Clarissa Eileen."

"Better than an automatic—a battery of guns!" replied Lanstron. "This is where I will use any influence I have with Partow for all it is worth. Yes, and he shall have the iron cross. It is for such deeds as his that the iron cross was meant."

"Thank you,' she said. "It's worth something to make a man as happy as you will make him. Yes, you are real flesh and blood to do this, Lanny."

Her point won with surprising ease, when she had feared that military form and law could not be circumvented, she leaned against the wall in reaction. For twenty-four hours she had been without sleep. The interest of her appeal for Feller had kept up her strength after the excitement of the fight for the redoubt was over. Now there seemed nothing left to do.

"That's fine of you, Lanny!" she said. "You've taken it like a good stoic, this loss of your thousandth chance. You really believed in it, didn't you?"

"Forgotten already, like the many other thousandth chances that have failed," he replied cheerfully. "One of the virtues of Partow's steel automatons is that, being tearless as well as passionless, they never cry over spilt milk. And now," he went on soberly, "we must be saying good-by."

"Good-by, Lanny? Why, what do you mean?" She was startled.

"Till the war is over," he said, "and longer than that, perhaps, if La Tir remains in Gray territory."

"You speak as if you thought you were going to lose!"

"Not while many of our soldiers are alive, if they continue to show the spirit that they have shown so far; not unless two men can crush one man in the automatic-gun-recoil age. But La Tir is in a tangent and already in the Grays' possession, while we act on the defensive. So I should hardly be flying over your garden again."

"But there's the telephone, Lanny, and here we are talking over it this very minute!" she expostulated.

"You must remove it," he said. "If the Grays should discover it they might form a suspicion that would put you in an unpleasant position."

The telephone had become almost a familiar institution in her thoughts. Its secret had something of the fascination for her of magic.

"Nonsense!" she exclaimed. "I am going to be very lonely. I want to learn how Feller is doing—I want to chat with you. So I decide not to let it be taken out. And, you see, I have the tactical situation, as you soldiers call it, all in my favor. The work of removal must be done at my end of the line. You're quite helpless to enforce your wishes. And, Lanny, if I ring the bell you'll answer, won't you?"

"I couldn't help it!" he replied.

"Until then! You've been fine about everything today!"

"Until then!"

When Marta left the tower she knew only that she was weary with the mind-weariness, the body-weariness, the nerve-weariness of a spectator who has shared the emotion of every actor in a drama of death and finds the excitement that has kept her tense no longer a sustaining force.

As she went along the path, steps uncertain from sheer fatigue, her sensibilities livened again at the sight of a picture. War, personal war, in the form of the giant Stransky, was knocking at the kitchen door. His two-days-old beard was matted with dust and there were dried red spatters on his cheek. War's furnace flames seemed to have tanned him; war seemed to be breathing from his deep chest; his big nose was war's promontory. But the unexposed space of his forehead seemed singularly white when he took off his cap as Minna came in answer to his knock. Her yielding lips were parted, her eyes were bright with inquiry and suspicion, her chin was firmly set.

"I came to see if you would let me kiss your hand again," said Stransky, squinting through his brows wistfully.

"I see your nose has been broken once. You don't want it broken a second time. I'm stronger than you think!" Minna retorted, and held out her hand carelessly as if it pleased her to humor him.

He was rather graceful, despite his size, as he touched his lips to her fingers. Just as he raised his head a burst of cheering rose from the yard.

"So you've found that we have gone, you brilliant intellects!" he shouted, and glared at the wall of the house in the direction of the cheers.

"Quick! You have no time to lose!" Minna warned him.

"Quick! quick!" cried Marta.

Stransky paid no attention to the urgings. He had something more to say to Minna.

"I'm going to keep thinking of you and seeing your face—the face of a good woman—while I fight. And when the war is over, may I come to call?" he asked.

His feet were so resolutely planted on the flags that apparently the only way to move them was to consent.

"Yes, yes!" said Minna. "Now, hurry!"

"Say, but you make me happy! Watch me poke it into the Grays for you!" he cried and bolted.

Within the kitchen Mrs. Galland was already slumbering soundly in her chair. Overhead Marta heard the exclamations of male voices and the tread of what was literally the heel of the conqueror—guests that had come without asking! Intruders that had entered without any process of law! Would they overrun the house, her mother's room, her own room?

Indignation brought fresh strength as she started up the stairs. The head of the flight gave on to a dark part of the hall. There she paused, held by the scene that a score or more Gray soldiers, who had riotously crowded into the dining-room, were enacting. They were members of Fracasse's company of the Grays whom Marta had seen from her window the night before rushing across the road into the garden.

When, finally, they burst into the redoubt after it was found that the Browns had gone, all, even the judge's son, were the war demon's own. The veneer had been warped and twisted and burned off down to the raw animal flesh. Their brains had the fever itch of callouses forming. Not a sign of brown there in the yard; not a sign of any tribute after all they had endured! They had not been able to lay hands on the murderous throwers of hand-grenades. Far away now was barrack-room geniality; in oblivion were the ethics of an inherited civilization taught by mothers, teachers and church.

But here was a house—a house of the Browns; a big, fine house! They would see what they had won—this was the privilege of baffled victory. What they had won was theirs! To the victor the spoils! Pell-mell they crowded into the dining-room, Hugo with the rest, feeling himself a straw on the crest of a wave, and Pilzer, most bitter, most ugly of all, his short, strong teeth and gums showing and his liver patch red, lumpy, and trembling. In crossing the threshold of privacy they committed the act that leaves the deepest wound of war's inheritance, to go on from generation to generation in the history of families.

With his bayonet he smashed the only globe left intact by the shell fire. There was a laugh as a shower of glass fell on the floor. Even the judge's son, the son of the tribune of law, joined in. Pilzer then ripped up the leather seat of a chair. This introductory havoc whetted his appetite for other worlds of conquest, as the self-chosen leader of the increasing crowd that poured through the doorway.

"Maybe there's food!" he shouted. "Maybe there's wine!"

"Food and wine!"

"Yes, wine! We're thirsty!"

"And maybe women! I'd like to kiss a pretty maid servant!" Pilzer added, starting toward the hall.

"Stop!" cried Hugo, forcing his way in front of Pilzer.

He was like no one of the Hugos of the many parts that his comrades had seen him play. His blue eyes had become an inflexible gray. He was standing half on tiptoe, his quivering muscles in tune with the quivering pitch of his voice:

"We have no right in here! This is a private house!"

"Out of the way, you white-livered little rat!" cried Pilzer, "or I'll prick the tummy of mamma's darling!"

KAISER IS FORMING NEW ARMY

Movement to Flank the Allies.

BOLD STRATEGIC MOVE

Troops Being Rushed to Cut In at the North.

A LEVY ON OTHER ARMIES

All Divisions In the Field Called On to Contribute.

Berlin, Oct. 7.—An official statement says: The general war situation is of the most hopeful character for the Germans and Austrians. Surprise generally is expressed at the amazing activity of the German cruisers stationed abroad.

London, Oct. 7.—The official reports show new and desperate attempts of the German right wing to stop the slow but steady progress of the allies' enveloping movement in the north of France.

Held fast at every point where they attempted to breach the Franco-British lines, the German commanders launched a large force of infantry and cavalry in a flanking movement of their own. They sent their horsemen sweeping westward as far as the environs of Lille, north of the furthest advance of the allies and from every part of the battle front they gathered fighting men to swell the new army formed for this purpose.

From southern Belgium the Germans took 20,000 troops, horse, foot and artillery, to add strength to the movement. The already weakened center was further depleted, Von Kluck contributed his quota, and even from East Prussia military trains were rushing men. The assault on the Antwerp forts slackened noticeably, and there is evidence that a tremendous effort is to be made to encircle the allies as they come north and drive them away from the German lines of communication.

Germans Redouble Attack.

While this army was being gathered and sent on its way, the Germans redoubled their attack on the allies north of the Oise river. The latest official French report announced that the battle at this point was growing in violence, whereas elsewhere on the battle line there was a comparative calm.

The allies gained some ground at the northern part of the heights of the Meuse and on the right bank of the Aisne, north of Soissons, as well as in the vicinity of Berry-Au-Bac, but the greatest efforts again were concentrated in the operations to the west and north.

An official statement in Berlin said that the Germans had taken Ft. Camp des Romains on the River Meuse, near St. Mihiel, and had taken many prisoners. The statement claimed a German victory over the Russians at Augustowo on Oct. 1 and 2. The situation was announced as being most auspicious at every point for the Austrians and Germans.

Bombardment of Antwerp.

The burgomaster of Antwerp warned all noncombatants to leave the city, as a bombardment was about to occur. It was announced that the warning was simply to spare the inhabitants the dangers of a bombardment and that the defense was continuing with the utmost success. Winston Churchill, the British lord of the admiralty, is said to be in Antwerp for the purpose of conferring with the Belgian general staff on methods of defense. The German attack on the forts has slackened somewhat.

Dispatches from Vienna gave the official announcement that the situation in Russian Poland and Galicia was favorable. It also was declared that the Russians had been defeated in Hungary, where they are advancing through the Carpathians, and that many prisoners had been taken. Other dispatches contradicted this information, declaring that the Austrians had been defeated and that the Russians had attacked Maramaros-Sziget, an important seat in Hungary.

It was announced by the Canadian ministry of militia that 22,000 more troops would be raised at once for service on the continent. This would be raising the Canadian contingent up to 55,000 men, 23,000 having already been sent from Quebec in transports.

The Case of Von Moltke.

London, Oct. 7.—No confirmation has come from any German source of the reported removal by Emperor William of Field Marshal Von Moltke from the post of chief of the German general staff. An Amsterdam dispatch said that "the dismissal of General Von Moltke was due to a collision with the emperor over several important questions of strategy."

SIMPLY OBEYED ORDERS

This Is the Defense of Soldiers Convicted of Looting.

Paris, Oct. 7.—Four German looters were tried here by courtmartial. They were arrested between Senlis and Chantilly and were found to be carrying large sums of money, watches and jewelry. The prisoners stated that General Von Stenger had given formal orders to shoot all civilians, to burn and pillage houses, to finish off wounded men and to take no prisoners. The men claimed that under these instructions they simply had obeyed orders.

Two of the prisoners were condemned to death, one was sentenced to imprisonment at hard labor for life and the fourth to ten years solitary confinement.

The charge against Crown Prince Frederick William of having pillaged the house of Baron De Beye is renewed by the baroness herself.

TEUTON RETREAT TURNING TO ROUT

This Is the Claim Made at Petrograd.

RUSSIANS CROSS FRONTIER

German Fortified Positions on the Frontier of East Prussia Also Declared to Be Under Heavy Bombardment and Reports Come of Desperate Fighting in the Vicinity of Bakalargewo.

Petrograd, Oct. 7.—A statement issued by the Russian war office says: "The pursuit continues successfully. The Germans are trying to make a stand between Lyck and Verzhbolovo. We have taken thousands of prisoners and many guns. The numbers of these are now being counted."

London, Oct. 7.—Reports that the German retreat in East Prussia is becoming more and more hurried come from several points, in spite of a reiteration from Berlin of the claim that the Russians were badly defeated at Augustowo on Oct. 1 and 2.

Information has reached Rome that Cossacks have cut off and damaged several railroads in East Prussia which were being used in the German retreat from Suwalki and Kovno in Russian Poland. This retreat, thus hampered and delayed by lack of transportation facilities, is rapidly degenerating into a rout. There no longer seems doubt that Russian troops in pursuit of the Germans have crossed the frontier into East Prussia. The latest official statement in Petrograd announces that German fortified positions on the border are under heavy artillery fire and that there has been desperate fighting in the vicinity of Bakalargewo.

Rushing Reinforcements.

The German forces appear to be retiring westward in large numbers, although reinforcements are said to have been sent from the fortress of Koenigsberg. Petrograd reports say that General Von Hindenberg, hailed in Berlin as the "saviour of East Prussia," who has been sent to take charge of the German and Austrian forces for the impending battle at Crakow, has been succeeded by General Von Mogen. An official announcement of appointments in Berlin confirms this.

An official announcement from Berlin via Amsterdam, published by a news agency here, says that a German army operating in the direction of the Vistula river has come into contact with Russian troops.

The Havas agency at Paris forwards an official announcement from Petrograd that the German retreat is continuing along the frontier of East Prussia. The Germans have been forced to evacuate their fortified positions between Wierbolo and Lyck, the announcement adds.

Rennenkampf Resumes Offensive.

There is no news of the progress of the great Russian army of one million men under the Grand Duke Nicholas, the commander in chief, which has Breslau as its objective and which has not yet been in conflict with the enemy.

Petrograd dispatches agree in the statement that the Russian army under General Rennenkampf has resumed the offensive after the victory at Augustowo. The Russians take no notice of repeated German claims of a decided victory at this point and the capture of a large number of prisoners, and continue to speak of it as an important triumph for the czar's forces.

Additional details of the fighting in Hungary tell of a battle along the line from Polena to Aknos. The Russians tried to break through the German and Austrian front, but were obliged to retreat, reports say, losing many prisoners when the defending forces sent a strong detachment in pursuit.

Austrians Closely Pressed.

Vienna, Oct. 7.—Ten thousand out of the 16,000 troops which were concentrated in Trent have been rushed to Hungary, where the Austrians are evacuating Sziget. The Austrians are being closely pressed by the Russians

Health First

In buying food articles we must consider several things—economy, results, convenience, reliability; but the most important is Health.

Health means everything. If one gets cheated in buying dresses, shoes or bonnets it is provoking, but the harm is chiefly loss of money. In buying food articles, if imitations or poor stuffs are supplied, there is a loss of money and probably an injury to health also; and good health is beyond price.

Remember these facts when buying baking powder.

in this feature and it is expected that a large number of masked revellers will be out. Costumes for the occasion may be secured from the representative of a large costuming firm, who will have his headquarters in the sample rooms in the New Lynn Hotel.

The crowds at the second night of the festival were almost as large as the immense throng which turned out on the opening night of the week. The streets were crowded from an early hour until late in the evening with a joyous and care free multitude who swarmed around the two big free attraction stages, craned their faces skyward while Granda skipped lightly over his high wire and Saymoa swung through space in his great cloud swing, rode the Ferris wheel and the Merry-Go-Round, inspected the various exhibits, threw at the dolls, smashed targets at the shooting galleries, ate 'crackerjack,' washed it down with lemonade, and in various other ways, seemed to thoroughly enjoy itself.

The attractions proved their excellence by again drawing immense audiences, and the streets in front of each stage were literally jammed with humanity, and the poor fellow who had an errand on the other side of the crowd had to adopt football tactics to make any impression on the line.

The police have handled the crowds very nicely, and have had no trouble in keeping order, but are expecting to have their hands full when the out-of-town crowds commence coming in later in the week.

There have been a few complaints of small articles missing from buggies, autos, etc., and the committee wishes to emphasize the fact that all articles may be checked, free of charge, at the booth in front of the Gold Mine Furniture Store, on Chestnut street.

The Central Pharmacal Company has increased its capital stock to $100,000. The stockholders expect to begin the erection of a new modern laboratory soon.
